READY TO HELP: The seven Harlow firefighters who are preparing to take the Three Peaks Challenge

Firemen will be in peak condition for challenge

Magnificent seven set to tackle three mountains in 24 hours

CONDITION: Little Oliver with his uncle, Steven Joyce

By Charlotte Page

SEVEN firefighters from Harlow Fire Station are preparing to swap their fire boots for walking boots as they take on three of the UK's highest mountains in 24 hours in aid of a little boy with cerebral palsy.

The team is raising money for two-year-old Oliver Barker, from Epping, who is one of the septet's nephews.

He was diagnosed with cerebral palsy, a condition which impairs muscle coordination, following complications during child birth.

His uncle, sub-officer on Red Watch at Harlow Central Fire Station, Steven Joyce, said: "He is taken to various therapies, not provided by the NHS, to aid Oliver with strengthening his muscles and brain functions to try to improve his quality of life.

"There is no cure for his condition, we cannot help his family with the emotional and physical challenges, but we hope to help with some of the financial hurdles that his family are facing daily."

The team will take on what is known as the Three Peaks Challenge and consists of tackling Scotland's Ben Nevis, England's Scafell Pike and Snowdon in Wales.

The firefighters who are preparing to join Steven in the adventure are Vince Norton, Mick Jakes, Bobby Dynes, Andy Thomson, Dan Byatt, and Rob Kettridge.

Steven continued: "The team and I are very determined and optimistic that we can complete the challenge within the 24-hour period, road traffic permitting.

"We know it is going to be gruelling and difficult. It's a marathon over three mountains, not a leisurely walk in the park, so we are all doing more to improve our stamina and fitness.

"But there is really only one way to prepare for this event and as Essex is not the most mountainous part of the country, we are going to do some of our training in the Brecon Beacons in South Wales."

Positive

Speaking of how the challenge came about, Mr Joyce added: "We are all of mixed, varying ages.

"The best thing about the guys on the team is their positive attitude, when I told them about Oliver and his family and mentioned the idea of the three peaks challenge as a way of raising money for him, their answer was I'm up for that, let's do it."

To donate, visit Oliver's Just Giving page: justgiving.com/childrenhelped2017/olivers-army/

Businesses are also welcome to donate or contribute by donating walking equipment, clothing, and high energy foods.

The team will take on the challenge on Saturday, June 10.

SCENE: The Briars

Robber who demanded £1k watch 'had a gun'

THE victim of a suspected Harlow robbery told police he was threatened with a gun.

The man was in The Briars, Harlow, around 10.40pm on Tuesday (April 4) when he was approached by two men who demanded his watch worth more than £1,000.

In launching an appeal on Wednesday, April 5, an Essex Police spokesman said: "One of the men presented what the victim believed was a firearm and demanded the victim's watch."

Taken

"A watch worth a four-figure sum was taken and the men left."

The force has not released a description of either suspect.

Anyone who was in the area at the time or has any information about the incident is asked to call Harlow Police Station on 101 quoting incident 1031 of 04/04.

Alternatively anyone can call charity Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

'FIT-FOR-PURPOSE RETAIL SPACE': The developer says its transformation of the area would act as a catalyst for further regeneration form the town centre.

Addington Capital has submitted a planning application for 468 residential units to be built above rebuilt shops on the block which adjoins Broad Walk, Market Square and West Gate.

This is a marked increase from the 442 homes put forward in a plan seen by 550 residents in a public exhibition in November.

The developer has also added in plans for an open-air, boulevard-style shopping area where Little Walk was located on Broad Walk before its 2015 demolition.

Joel Fayers, on behalf of Addington Capital, said: "The majority of the feedback received from residents and businesses has been positive in its support of the proposals."

"Of those surveyed, 97 per cent were in favour of regeneration in the town centre."

Flexible

"We believe the redevelopment of this long-term underutilised site will substantially benefit the community by delivering new homes, public realm and flexible, fit-for-purpose retail space as well as acting as a catalyst for further town centre regeneration."

Proposals for the site also include communal outdoor areas for residents, improved public space around the site and private car and cycle parking.

Alex Wagstaff, partner at Addington Capital, previously said the project was an opportunity to reform a neglected part of the town which now has several empty shops.

The firm has previously col-

Football coach is jailed for grooming under-age boys

Man promised youngsters trips and gifts in return for sexual acts

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW football coach has been jailed for nine years for grooming and sexual activity with teenage boys.

Robert Ellis, 50, of Church End, Harlow, was banned from FA coaching when he arranged to meet young men online by posing as a talent scout and then sexually engaged with some of his victims.

He was found guilty of six counts of engaging in sexual activity with a boy aged under 15 and three counts of sexual touching.

On one of those occasions Ellis engaged in sexual touching of a 14-year-old boy, while he was on bail for previous similar offences.

Returning to Chelmsford Crown Court Friday, April 7, he was sentenced to nine years in prison and will be added to the sex offenders register for life.

Ellis, a professional civil servant, had pleaded not guilty and the trial took place in February. The court heard he met one 15-year-old victim online in April 2015.

He invited him to football matches, claimed to have talent spotted goalkeepers and offered to coach the teenager, who was from Lincolnshire.

Ellis arranged to meet him in a park in July of that year and the pair played football before going for a meal.

The mother of the victim, who cannot be named for legal reasons, found out and banned her son from contacting him again.

But they resumed contact in December 2015 and arranged to meet. This was reported to police and Ellis was arrested in January 2016, before the meeting could take place.

Relationship

Essex Police began investigations and found another young man who said he had been in a sexual relationship with Ellis when he was 15, after they met online.

The victim told how they had twice engaged in sexual activity, once after Ellis had taken him to Chessington World of Adventures and the second time after he had taken him out for dinner.

During the police investigation, it was also found Ellis had been banned by the Football Association from taking part in any FA-football related activity involving under-18s, since December 2013.

However, he continued to take part in informal football sessions in Harlow that were not covered by this ban.

While on bail, Ellis met a 14-year-old boy and engaged in sexual touching with him. He was again arrested and remanded.

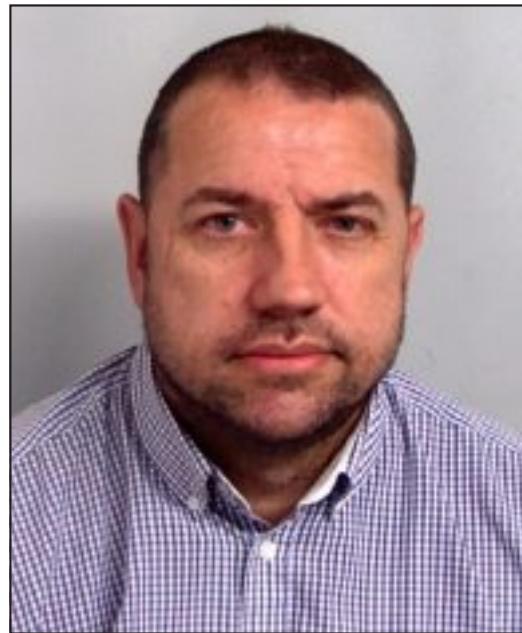

A jury found him guilty of all charges on February 28.

Detective Sergeant Clayton Ford, of Essex Police's online investigation team, said: "This is a worrying grooming case where Ellis used his love of football and the suggestion of gifts or trips to various places to try and get a teenage victim into a situation where he could carry out sexual acts with him.

"Thankfully the victim's family were able to recognise the risk from the messages exchanged and report the situation to police.

"Where Ellis was able to get unsupervised access to the other teenagers in this case, he went on to commit serious sexual offences.

"This case highlights the dangers of manipulative individuals operating on the internet looking to identify and exploit vulnerability or a common interest that will give them the opportunity to meet children for their own sexual gratification."

OFFENCES: Robert Ellis

NSPCC VIEW

JAILED former football coach Robert Ellis has been described as "a devious and manipulative sexual predator" by the NSPCC.

The 50-year-old, of Church End, Harlow, was found guilty of six counts of engaging in sexual activity with a boy aged under 15 and three counts of sexual touching.

After he was sentenced to nine years in prison, the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (NSPCC) released a strongly-worded statement.

An NSPCC spokesman said: "Ellis is a devious and manipulative sexual predator who used his position as a football coach to commit vile abuse against children.

"His sickening actions will have a long lasting effect on his victims and it's important they receive all possible support to help rebuild their lives.

"We hope they can take some comfort from today's [last Friday] sentence and the fact that Ellis's campaign of abuse has finally come to an end.

"Increasingly, young people are being groomed by abusers on the internet, so parents and carers need to be vigilant about the relationships their child is forming on and offline.

"For help and support parents can call the NSPCC helpline on 0808 800 5000."

Dealer who pushed crack and heroin given jail sentence

Woman caught with 150 wraps locked up for two years

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexsexnews.co.uk

A FEMALE drug dealer, found with 150 wraps of heroin and crack cocaine, has been jailed for two-and-a-half years.

Desire Johnson, 23, who lives near Birmingham in the West Midlands, was spotted by Essex Police officers with known drug users in Pittmans Field, Harlow on February 17.

She left the group after spotting the officers and began walking away. But officers caught up with her and she then admitted supplying narcotics to the group.

Johnson was arrested and taken to a property in Pittmans Field where she had been in the moments leading up to her arrest.

Search

A search uncovered 154 wraps of class A drugs in her bag.

Appearing at Chelmsford Crown Court on Monday, Johnson admitted two counts of drug possession with intent to supply and received a 30-month jail term.

Local knowledge was key to making the arrest, according to Detective Constable Jake Etheridge.

He said: "This case demonstrates how well Essex Police officers know their local area.

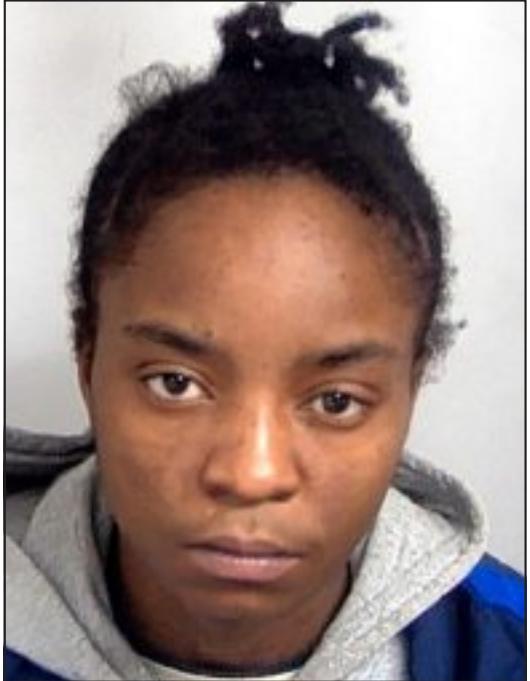

"The officers patrolling instantly recognised the local drug users gathered with Johnson and from her subsequent behaviour, in trying to evade our officers, realised she was clearly up to no good.

"She was latterly found with a significant amount of class A drugs which we have now successfully prevented reaching the streets of our community.

Warning

"I hope this sentence serves as a warning to others involved in the supply of illegal drugs in our county that it is only a matter of time before we catch up with them."

Man faces rape and slavery charges as four Romanian children are put into care

A HARLOW man has been charged with rape of a child under 13 and four offences under the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

Catalin-Florin Buica, 24, of Pennymead, Harlow, appeared in Chelmsford Magistrates' Court on Monday and has been remanded until a further date. Following the warrant four Romanian children have been safeguarded.

■ The news follows the jailing of Harlow football coach Robert Ellis for grooming and sexual activity with boys under the age of 15.

He was jailed for nine years after pretending to be a talent scout to win the trust of one boy.

That story appears on page 5 of this week's Harlow Star.

£1.2m indoor go-karting track gets the green light

Centre will offer a multilevel track allowing 16 karts to race at once

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A £1.2 MILLION indoor go-kart facility will open in Harlow this summer after planning permission was granted.

TeamSport, a company which operates 20 karting centres nationwide, announced last Wednesday (April 5) that a 500 metre multilevel track will be completed in River Way.

The track, which will allow up to 16 people to race at once, is due to open in July and will create up to 40 jobs. There will also be a licensed bar and conference facilities.

Dominic Gaynor, TeamSport managing director, said: "We're really excited to have secured the go ahead to build a centre in Harlow.

"It's a thriving town with so much to offer its residents and visitors, so it's fantastic to now add the thrill of indoor karting to the list."

"Our range of race events and our excellent value karting offers will ensure karting is accessible to everyone looking for an adrenaline fuelled and fun day out."

TeamSport has not announced

ACTION: A go-karting facility is to open in Harlow prices for the Harlow centre, but other centres have a variety of deals and offers in place for racing.

Children as young as eight have the chance to enjoy the arena which could pave the way for a future Lewis Hamilton to develop.

TeamSport is opening a centre in Dunstable in May, making Harlow their 22nd centre.

Permission was granted for the facility by Harlow Council on Monday, March 27.

Mr Gaynor said: "TeamSport Indoor Karting has a proven history of helping both the young drivers and young at heart drivers get their first taste on track with the comfort and knowledge of having all the right safety measures and equipment to support them."

"You never know the next Formula One superstar could be from Harlow."

Homeless man found not guilty of Christmas Day attack

A HARLOW man charged in the aftermath of a Christmas Day attack has been found not guilty of grievous bodily harm (GBH).

Another man in his 30s suffered a minor puncture wound to the neck in the incident on a cycle track near Arkwrights, Harlow, around 12.40pm on December 25 last year.

The victim was flown to hospital in London for treatment before later being discharged.

Jury

John-Paul Roberts, 43, of no fixed abode, Harlow, was initially charged with attempted murder but this was downgraded to one count of wounding with intent to cause GBH, wounding inflicting GBH, and possession of a weapon in a public place.

He pleaded not guilty to all three counts and a jury found him not guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court on Thursday, March 30.

In an earlier hearing Roberts pleaded guilty to two separate indictments of possessing class A drugs heroin and cocaine.

At the sentencing, also on March 30, Roberts received a two-month custodial prison sentence.

MP dives at the chance to raise money for hospital

Politician to swim 100 lengths of pool to help fund new equipment

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon will swim 100 lengths to raise money for Princess Alexandra Hospital.

The politician has a form of cerebral palsy which means he normally relies on a stick to walk, but he described his ability to swim long distances as a "miracle".

He will swim the 2,500 metre challenge at the pool in Manor of Groves Hotel on Friday, April 21 and has already raised £345 towards the infirmary in Hamstel Road, Harlow.

Mr Halfon said: "Swimming is one thing I can do well with my leg. I can't do a sponsored run so I will swim for the hospital."

Promised

"I have promised to do 100 lengths. It is a great way for me to get fit and help the hospital too."

His fundraising will specifically help the hospital's charity. Fundraising coordinator Jamie Pring said donations go towards costs of buying new equipment and enhancing patient care.

Mr Halfon has no fundraising target, but simply aims to raise as much as possible for the hospital.

He said: "I can't swim very fast but I can swim really far. It is like a miracle, it has a magic effect on me. In water I can walk normally."

"I do not want to let the hospital down. Please everyone in Harlow sponsor me as I do 100 lengths."

Residents of county among the worst for paying bills

PEOPLE in Harlow are some of the worst in the country for running out on a bill, new data reveals.

According to an analysis of the latest crime figures by the Star, there were 263 cases of people making-off without payment in Epping in the year up to September 2016.

That number is up slightly from 228 instances of people dodging a bill recorded in the area over the same period the year before.

Running

The crime can include leaving a restaurant or hotel without paying, running away from a taxi fare or filling a car up with petrol and driving off.

The number of bills evaded translates to one instance of someone doing a runner on their bill for every 493 people living in Epping Forest - one of the highest rates in England and Wales.

Across the two countries there were more than 69,000 cases of people making off without payment.

Harlow also saw a relatively high rate of dodging payments, with 111 cases of making-off without paying.

Tributes paid to councillor

'She fought for her residents. She was interested in local things'

By William Mata
william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

TRIBUTES have been made to longstanding Harlow Council member Muriel Jolles, who has died at the age of 80.

She was buried during a Jewish ceremony at Parndon Wood Crematorium in Harlow on Tuesday April 4, having passed away a day before after losing her battle with cancer.

Until recently, Mrs Jolles, who lived in Fir Park, Harlow, worked as a supply teacher in the town and was a well-regarded member of the community.

Politics

The Conservative councillor entered local politics in 2005 and held her Old Harlow seat until last year when she retired to look after her husband Joshua Jolles, who survives her.

The pair moved to Harlow in 1965 and had three children; sons David and Adam and daughter Julie. A family friend said they also had several grandchildren.

They would have celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary later this year.

Mrs Jolles found out she had cancer only a few months ago.

Her friend and party colleague Councillor David Carter, of Greystoke Park, Harlow, said: "She was very caring.

"She used to argue like mad with her husband but you could not argue with him as she would defend him.

"They always had German shepherd dogs. She was well known in the community and was very popular."

Synagogue

Mrs Jolles was an active member of Harlow's Jewish community and attended a synagogue in Harberts Road.

Mr Carter added: "She was very interfaith and believed a lot of problems could be solved by interfaith groups talking to each other."

"She was a very caring councillor. She took on board a lot of things her residents wanted her to. She fought for her residents. She was down to earth and interested in local things."

"There were a lot of people at the funeral. A lot of councillors and family friends."

Mrs Jolles studied at Nottingham University.

The funeral was led by Rabbi Irit Shillor and Mrs Jolles' house was opened to the public to come and pay respects.

DIED: Muriel Jolles

SICK OF SMUDGES?

NEW UltraClear SuperClean lenses
stay cleaner for longer

UltraClear SuperClean lenses attract less dust, repel more water and resist more smudges than standard lenses. They're good at protecting your wallet, too – get them free with glasses from £69.

NEW UltraClear SuperClean lenses

Stay cleaner for longer

Anybody who wears glasses will understand the constant effort to rid your lenses from annoying fingerprints and mystery smudges.

UltraClear SuperClean is our new enhanced anti-reflection and scratch-resistant treatment, with some great added benefits – which all help to reduce annoying reflections, attract less dust, stay cleaner for longer, and make cleaning easier.

Perfect for everyday situations – like wearing your glasses in the rain, reflections when you're driving, or those persistent finger smudges.

They're good at protecting your wallet too – get them free with glasses from £69.

5 key properties:

- Anti-reflective - Reflections from uncoated lenses make it difficult to get sharp, clear vision throughout the lenses. With UltraClear SuperClean, reflections are removed, giving the lens a reflection-free appearance with great clarity.

- Smudge-resistant - Fingerprints can be annoying on lenses. They look unattractive and affect the clarity of vision. UltraClear SuperClean lenses are smudge-resistant meaning fewer smudges, such as pesky fingerprints build up on the lenses. Fewer smudges mean less cleaning.

- Super scratch-resistant - With everyday use, it's easy to scratch or damage an uncoated lens – so Specsavers has always included scratch-resistant lenses as standard. UltraClear SuperClean offers even more durability and far greater protection against scratching.

- Anti-static properties - An anti-static layer makes the lens less likely to attract dust. This reduces the build-up of dust and other particles that find themselves on your lenses, so they don't have to be cleaned as often.

- Super hydrophobic - The lenses also have greater water-repelling properties, giving improved visibility and making them easier to clean.

Ask your optician about UltraClear SuperClean for your next pair of glasses.

CANDIDATES: Harlow Labour candidates: Eugenie Harvey, Tony Durcan, Mike Danvers and Karen Clempner

County election candidates all set for battle

HARLOW residents will go to the polls on Thursday May 4 to choose who should represent the town at Essex County Council. Labour members Mike Danvers, Karen Clempner and Tony Durcan are seeking to defend their seats, as is Conservative Eddie Johnson. There are 75 councillors on Essex County Council and the Conservative Party holds more than half of the seats, with 45...

PARTY PRIORITIES

The Harlow Star approached all four parties to have entered candidates for comment, but Labour and Liberal Democrats were the only ones to reply at the time of writing. The responses are:

■ LABOUR

We're standing for Labour because we have the experience and energy to represent you at County Hall.

Our priorities will be your priorities. From our conversations with you, we know these are the state of Harlow's roads, youth services, social care, your safety and security and antisocial behaviour from litter to crime.

We'll push for roads to be repaired by usage rather than mileage. The current formula means that country roads are looked after while our town roads crumble. This is unfair and we will not accept it.

To improve safety and curb antisocial behaviour, we'll fight for more police and PCSOs on the streets and in the town centre.

We'll make sure that your voice is heard at County Hall. Harlow is a great town. We'll work hard to make it even greater.

■ LIBERAL DEMOCRATS

The Harlow Liberal Democrats strongly believe in tackling important local issues such as the Essex care crisis, which our proposal to increase funding for was blocked by the Tories.

As well as putting road maintenance into local authority control to speed up the repair, not just patching up, of our roads, we will also campaign to protect funding for youth service, libraries and concessionary transports fares for pensioners.

As the official opposition to the Conservatives in County Hall we refuse to allow the Tories through damaging cuts or Labour through a lack of action, to destroy our vital services.

Polling stations are open from 7am to 10pm on the day. To find your nearest polling station visit: <http://www.harlow.gov.uk/elections-results-county>

Campaigner says council and RSPCA 'overlooking' owners of neglected animals

Public demand more action on tethered horses

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE graphic image of a pregnant mare found dead in Harlow has fueled cries for action on horse tethering.

The practice is not illegal, but the increasingly regular sight of poorly animals roaming around the town has led 5,630 people to sign a petition to 'stop inhumane treatment of equestrian animals on common land'.

Powers

But many feel the RSPCA and Harlow Council are overlooking owners neglecting horses, even though they have powers to act.

Petition founder Peter Bailey, 46, of Newhall, Harlow, said: "People have ideas but no one ever seems to do anything about it."

"A couple of people said to start a petition and get something going."

"It has raised the profile of it. I think the RSPCA now realises

UPSETTING: This image of the horse has been shared on social media

there are a lot of people concerned."

He added: "More than 5,000 residents have said enough is enough and at this stage we wait for action to be taken."

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, stepped into the debate after administrators of Facebook group Spotted in Harlow shared an image of the horse lying dead on land near Pinnacles, Harlow.

He said: "I was saddened to hear that a tethered horse has been found deceased in Harlow."

"This situation can't continue. The welfare of our horses should be paramount. How we treat our animals is the mark of a civilised society."

The Conservative politician described being passed round CONCERN: Horse tethering is not illegal but is becoming increasingly common from one authority to another in his pursuit for answers.

Mr Halfon said: "I completely sympathise with Harlow residents' frustrations caused by the lack of response to this situation."

"When I recently contacted Essex County Council about a specific horse welfare issue they directed me to the RSPCA."

"The RSPCA's response was that there were no welfare concerns significant enough to intervene and they directed me back to the local authority."

Mr Halfon has written to animal welfare minister John Gardiner about the petition. Lord Gardiner's reply outlined the stance of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra).

Investigate

The letter states the 2006 Statutory Code of Practice for the Welfare of Horses gives the RSPCA and local authorities' power to investigate and take necessary action "when welfare is compromised".

Mr Halfon added: "I get so many messages from residents and the time has come and this has got to stop. Horses should not be allowed to be tethered in this way."

A spokesman from the RSPCA said: "The RSPCA shares concerns about the horses kept on Harlow Common."

"While the RSPCA has serious concerns about tethering, it is not against the law and we can only enforce guidelines on tethering such as pregnant mares, or those with foals at foot."

Harlow Council has been contacted for a response.

SUCCESS: Princess Alexandra Hospital exceeded the target for referring patients for treatment

Town's health services fail to hit NHS target

The exception is the Princess Alexandra

By William Mata

william.mata@hertessexnews.co.uk

HEALTH services in Harlow are below an NHS target for referring patients for treatment (RTT).

Latest figures for January 2017 show the town's medical centres were able to refer 88.9 per cent of patients in the 18-week time period, below the 92 per cent benchmark.

The data represents Princess Alexandra Hospital (PAH), in Hamstel Road, along with Harlow health services within the remit of West Essex CCG.

On a brighter note, when the PAH's figures are considered in isolation, the hospital exceeded the target.

A spokesman from the trust which manages the hospital, PAH

NHS Trust, celebrated their success and said: "PAH NHS Trust has been achieving the referral to treatment standard consistently since August 2016 and achieved 94.2 per cent in January, exceeding the target."

"Nationally, PAH is one of very few organisations delivering consistently on all planned care standards (RTT, cancer and diagnostics).

Improvements

"Despite these improvements there are still areas we are working to improve, such as orthopaedics and meeting the 94 per cent accident and emergency threshold, to ensure that we can deliver the same standard of care to all patients."

Harlow's figure is notably above Colchester (66.4 per cent), Southend (77.3), Basildon and Thurrock (77.4) and Mid Essex (77.9).

Simon Stevens, chief executive of NHS England, expects waiting times to rise slightly as a trade-off for improvement in other areas.

He said: "We are saying that we expect the number of operations that the NHS pays for will continue to go up."

"But we recognise that right now about nine out of ten people get their operations in under 18 weeks."

"We do expect there is a trade-off here. We do expect there will be some marginal lengthening of waiting lists but this will still represent a strong, quick waiting times experience compared to ten years ago, let alone 20."

Council abolishes title 'chairman' in campaign to be gender-neutral

HARLOW Council has voted to abolish the title of "chairman".

As part of a motion passed at a meeting on Thursday, April 6, the council voted that all council titles, such as chairman, should be gender-neutral.

The intention is to replace them with an alternative such as "chair" or "chairperson".

Councillor Emma Toal, who tabled the motion, said: "Language matters and we can't pretend it doesn't matter. It's a small issue but it's important we take a step forward."

The council will also undertake a "gender audit" of staff to find out whether there is a gender imbalance in senior roles or a pay gap between men and women employed to carry out the same work.

Ms Toal added: "Something like this is bigger than party politics

WORDS MATTER: Cllr Emma Toal tabled the motion and it's important going forward we make this a regular thing."

Fellow Labour councillor Jean Clark, seconding the motion, said the national pay gap stood at nine per cent for full-time workers. "It's estimated this gap will not close until 2069 – it's a long wait and I don't think I will be around to see it," she said.

Of gender-neutral titles, she said: "It's highly symbolic and sends a message to women on the staff, the community and in general, especially children."

The Conservative opposition attempted to amend the motion by removing the reference to changing titles.

Councillor Shona Johnson said: "I have no problem with being called chairman, nor does it demean me as a woman."

"Once this language police starts, where will it stop?"

Councillor Joel Charles labelled the motion "student union politics", claiming it was a distraction from issues such as Harlow's economy.

Paralympian first finisher in 'brilliant' 10k race for hospice

Organisers hoping to raise over £8,000

CHAMPION: Richard Chiassaro celebrates his win

By William Mata
william.mata@hertessexnews.co.uk

PARALYMPIAN Richard Chiassaro was the first of more than 200 finishers in the St Clare Hospice 10k race in Harlow.

The Harlow wheelchair athlete, who competed for Team GB in the Rio 2016 Games and also won one gold and three silver medals in last year's IPC European Championships, stormed across the line in 23:25mins last Sunday (April 9).

St Clare Hospice, a charity based in Hastingwood, relies on such events to raise the £4 million it costs each year to meet running costs.

Target

Organisers hope this year's event will raise more than £8,000 in funding towards the hospice.

In total 265 runners crossed the line, not including wheelchair athletes.

Thomas Grimes (33:54) was the first runner back, ahead of Lindsay Russell-Smith (43:06) who was the first female finisher.

Jamie Hooper, St Clare's fundraising development manager, said: "It was a brilliant day and, as ever, it was so humbling to witness the support shown by the hundreds of people who took part and volunteered.

"A huge congratulations is in order for our wonderful runners and a massive thank you to them for contributing to an amazing amount raised for the hospice.

"It is events like this that help to make St Clare the wonderful place that it is – and mean we can continue to care for local people and their families."

Keep your pet safe this Easter

The spring is here and Easter is fast approaching, but as with Christmas there are some potential health risks facing your pets during the holidays.

Easter eggs

Everyone loves an Easter egg, including your dog, unfortunately chocolate can be poisonous to dogs, especially if it is of the dark variety with a high cocoa content. The following is a rough guide to how much milk chocolate can be dangerous to your dog, however every animal is different and any pre-existing problems may exacerbate the symptoms, so if your dog does eat chocolate always contact your vet for advice.

Dark Chocolate contains roughly twice as much Theobromine, so half the amount of dark chocolate is needed to cause the same effects.

Other potential toxins at this time of year are raisins and currants found in hot cross buns. They are made from dried grapes. Fresh grapes are also toxic.

The toxic substance has not yet been identified but even a small quantity can, in some, cases cause kidney or liver failure. You may not notice any symptoms before the damage has already been done so contact your vet immediately if your pet has eaten any of the above.

Daffodils are lovely flowers and always a sure sign that spring has arrived, but be careful if your dog or cat tries to have a nibble. They contain a chemical called Lycorine that can cause the following symptoms: Vomiting, salivation and diarrhoea. Large quantities can cause seizures, low blood pressure, tremors and heart arrhythmias. The whole plant is poisonous but the bulbs are the most poisonous part.

If your pet eats any of these poisons, or indeed anything else that you are not sure about contact your vet straight away as it is important to start treatment as soon as possible before the poison gets absorbed.

This table is for a 10kg dog:

| Amount eaten by a 10kg dog | Amount harmful substance Potential effects |
|----------------------------|---|
| 50g milk chocolate 115mg | Theobromine Non toxic dose |
| 100g milk chocolate 230mg | Theobromine Vomiting and diarrhoea |
| 200g milk chocolate 460mg | Theobromine Cardiac (heart) symptoms |
| 400g milk chocolate 920mg | Theobromine Seizures |

Foil ne'er-do-wells with the anti-bandit bag

It will never catch on!
MARION McMULLEN
looks at the wacky inventions from yesteryear which didn't find a market

TMIGHT have sounded a good idea at the time, but sometimes the world is just not ready for the latest invention.

Austrian engineer Claus Scholz designed a housework-helping robot in 1964 that could even answer the phone for you. There was only one little hitch... the robot could not speak.

Scholz's remote-controlled MM7 and MM8 robots could pour a cuppa and operate a vacuum cleaner though, and Claus said: "What I eventually want to build is a machine that can virtually do any normal chore." His metal friends never ended up in every home, but they are often considered today as paving the way for industrial robots.

There were even moves to replace the family's pet cat in 1963 with a man-made gadget. The invention from Japan was powered by a two-watt motor and the mechanical moggy could meow 10 times a minute and had eyes that lit up. It was intended to scare rats and mice.

It was the turn of man's best friend to be scared in the 1940s when a new dog restraining invention was demonstrated. But the wooden gadget was barking mad and proved no match for a determined dog.

Before the introduction of health warnings on cigarettes, model Frances Richards was showing how you could smoke an entire pack using one cigarette holder in 1955, while couples could share a cigarette holder made for two.

Inventor John H T Rinfret demonstrated his invention to beat thieves in 1963... the anti-bandit bag. It was designed to foil would-be muggers making a grab for the bag. The owner pulled a chain, the bottom fell out of the case and the contents were scattered all over the floor. The idea was the thief would then run away instead of bothering to pick everything up off the ground.

The search for beauty also led to a spate of inventions including the Portable Volks Sauna Bath in 1969. It came from Germany, priced £15, and consisted of a plastic case with a warm-air heater.

In 1969 inventor Hugh Knight from Portland demonstrated his invention. The fishing boon featured a metal cup on the end of an extending arm that placed a handful of bait up to 15ft from the position of the operator. Nothing fishy about that, but no-one took the bait.

The following year Munich actress Inge Marschall demonstrated the new shower-hood. It also came from Germany and was designed to protect hair and make-up in the shower.

If you wanted to spruce up your kitchen then there was the all-in-one refrigerator, cooker and sink in 1951 or the Barbecue King, on show at the United States Trade Centre catering equipment exhibition in London in 1966 to demonstrate infra-red cooking.

You needed a head for heights for Jean Sanchon's 1965 invention. He came up with the idea of magnetic shoes designed to allow people walk

FAST & FURIOUS 8 (12A)

Released in 2015, Fast & Furious 7 provided a fitting send-off to Paul Walker, who died during filming, and became the highest grossing instalment of the turbo-charged franchise. The remaining cast reunite for this eighth chapter under director F Gary Gray, in which allegiances are tested to breaking point and members of the team must turn against each other to survive. Having put rogue Special Forces operative Deckard Shaw (Jason Statham) behind bars with the help of DSS agent Luke Hobbs (Dwayne Johnson) and covert ops team leader Frank Petty (Kurt Russell), professional street racer Dominic Toretto (Vin Diesel) looks forward to settling down with his wife Letty (Michelle Rodriguez). Unfortunately, diabolical criminal mastermind Cipher (Charlize Theron) has other plans and she exerts an irresistible hold over Dom, forcing him to turn against Letty and the rest of the gang, including Roman Pearce (Tyrese Gibson), Tej Parker (Chris Bridges) and Ramsey (Nathalie Emmanuel). Petty and his squad vow to take down Dom and Cipher, and Letty and co must do the unthinkable: outwit their high-octane brother in arms and put him behind bars for the rest of his life.

THE HANDMAIDEN (18)

Celebrated South Korean director Park Chan-wook draws inspiration from Sarah Waters' bestselling novel Fingersmith for this visually sumptuous, erotically charged thriller set against the turbulent backdrop of the Japanese occupation of 1930s Korea. Pickpocket Sook-Hee (Kim Tae-ri) has been raised as a thief since birth. She is hired by wily con artist Fujiwara (Ha Jung-woo), who has set his sights on the vast fortune of reclusive heiress Lady Izumi Hideko (Kim Min-hee). She lives in a mansion, where her movements are closely monitored by her uncle Kouzuki (Cho Jin-woong). Fujiwara poses as a Japanese Count and Sook-Hee gains a position as a young handmaiden in Lady Hideko's household. Sook-Hee uses her wiles to worm her way into her mistress' affections with the intention of carrying out Fujiwara's despicable scheme. However, the young handmaiden unexpectedly develops deep feelings for Hideko and aligns herself with the lady of the house. They hatch a plan to turn the tables on Fujiwara and give him a dose of his bitter medicine.

THE HATTON GARDEN JOB (15)

Fact is handcuffed to fantasy in this British crime drama directed by Ronnie Thompson, which draws inspiration from the 2015 "heist of the century". A criminal (Matthew Goode), known as Basil in news coverage at the time, is released from prison as the puppet of the Hungarian mafia. He is indebted to Erzabet Zsiondos (Joely Richardson), wife of a notorious war criminal, and must conjure up a huge payday if he wants to avoid a shallow grave. So 'Basil' contacts Danny Jones (Phil Daniels) with a daring plan: to rob the Hatton Garden Safe Deposit Ltd under the nose of the police by literally drilling into the vault. An old-fashioned robbery demands an experienced crew and Danny handpicks three men for the job: mastermind Brian Reader (Larry Lamb), driver Kenny Collins (Clive Russell) and fixer Terry Perkins (David Calder). The haul from the vault will set up the old timers for life and keep the Hungarian mafia off 'Basil'. As the proposed date for the robbery draws near, the team members must overcome last-minute obstacles to carry out the daring plan and ransack 73 security boxes.

Haunted by the past

ELEGANT ADAPTATION: A Sense Of An Ending, starring Charlotte Rampling and Jim Broadbent, is the big screen version of Julian Barnes' book

We are all unreliable narrators of the past. At the mercy of our vanity, we repeatedly embellish small triumphs until they become glittering false memories and ruthlessly edit down humiliating failures to tolerable footnotes in our personal history.

Elegantly adapted from Julian Barnes' 2011 Booker Prize-winning novel by award-winning British playwright Nick Payne, The Sense Of An Ending is a delicately calibrated drama about a retired father, whose cosy suburban bubble is burst by evidence of a misdeed from his university days.

In director Ritesh Batra's elegiac film, this ticking time bomb detonates with devastating force, driving a quietly spoken, unassuming man to stalk an old flame he wronged 50 years earlier.

The narrative oscillates between the two time frames, piecing together fragmented details into a mosaic of regret and atonement.

Oscar winner Jim Broadbent is the film's emotional core, delivering a subtle, nuanced performance that radiates calm when events around him seem to be spiralling out of control. He meticulously exposes chinks in his character's brittle armour.

When he plaintively informs his ex-wife (Harriet Walter), "I'm not an entirely redundant member of this family yet", his sadness and self-pity are palpable.

Anthony Webster (Broadbent) spends lazy days behind the counter of his vintage camera shop and long lunch breaks with ex-wife Margaret (Walter), with whom he is on amicable terms.

Their daughter Susie (Michelle Dockery) is heavily pregnant and Anthony attends antenatal classes in place of her partner.

Out of the blue, he receives a letter from a solicitor to inform him that Sarah Ford (Emily Mortimer), mother of his one-time girlfriend Veronica (Charlotte Rampling), has left him a treasure in her will.

The bequest turns out to be the diary of his school chum Adrian Finn (Joe Alwyn), who committed suicide at university after he became one point of a messy love triangle with Anthony and Veronica.

Reluctantly, Anthony harks back to his adolescence when he fell head over heels for the young Veronica (Freya Mavor) and holidayed with her family.

Frustrated by Veronica's cool detachment and her reluctance to commit, Anthony yearns for reassurance.

"Does it have to head somewhere, our relationship?" responds Veronica, sowing the seeds of jealousy and rejection that will sprout bitter, poisonous fruit.

The Sense Of An Ending is constructed on the solid foundation of Barnes' novel.

The impetuosity of hormone-addled youth in flashbacks contrasts with the weary resignation of retirement, laced with gentle humour, like when one of elderly Anthony's friends gleefully asserts that Facebook "is a boon for us widowers".

The steady tick tock of time heals most wounds, but selective reminiscence is a wonderful balm.

HOME ENTERTAINMENT

Rogue One: A Star Wars Story (12A) ★★★★

Walt Disney Studios Home Entertainment DVD & Blu-ray; streaming and download

The Galactic Empire begins construction of a new superweapon under the command of research director Orson Krennic (Ben Mendelsohn). From Rebel Alliance headquarters on Yavin 4, Mon Mothma (Genevieve O'Reilly) and other council members hastily prepare a response.

They dispatch Captain Cassian Andor (Diego Luna) and a reprogrammed enforcer droid, K-2SO (Alan Tudyk), to rescue Jyn Erso (Felicity Jones, inset) from an Imperial labour camp on Wobani, knowing she can lead them to her estranged father, Galen (Mads Mikkelsen), one of the architects of the Death Star. Together, Jyn and Cassian must steal design schematics to the "planet killer" from a heavily fortified complex on Scarif, aided by blind assassin Chirrut Imwe (Donnie Yen), his gun-toting protector Baze Malbus (Jiang Wen) and Imperial pilot defector Bodhi Rook (Riz Ahmed).

Rogue One is a rollicking, action-packed romp that dovetails neatly into the sprawling Star Wars universe. Jones is a plucky heroine, issuing the film's central battle cry built on the unwavering belief that "rebellions are built on hope", and Luna is a solid foil. Tudyk provides droll comic relief as the robotic sidekick, who is hard-wired to say whatever "comes into his circuits". The Force isn't particularly strong with Rogue One. However, director Gareth Edwards conjures magnificent action sequences, including cute nods to previous films in the series that will have fan boys and girls whooping with unrestrained glee.

FOOD & DRINK

SNACK ATTACK

BLOOM BARS

(Makes 4, depending on size of moulds)

INGREDIENTS
15g sour cherries, chopped
13 almonds, roughly chopped
3tbsp pumpkin seeds
2 dried apricots, finely diced
45g bar of Pana Chocolate
Raw Cacao (or a raw chocolate bar of your choice)

METHOD

1. Combine all the ingredients except the chocolate in a bowl and mix with your fingers.
2. Press the mixture evenly into four 12x3cm moulds - the fruit should help the nuts and seeds to stick together.
3. Freeze the mixture for 30 minutes to make it easier to pop out of the mould.
4. Melt the chocolate slowly over a bain-marie. Remove the bar mixture from the moulds and, using a fork, dip the bars into the melted chocolate.

5. Tap the fork against the side of the bowl to remove any excess chocolate. Place the bar on a tray lined with baking paper and refrigerate until the chocolate has set.

■ TIP: For a different method of presentation, line the moulds with half the melted chocolate and set in the fridge.

Once set, add your seeded nut mix, then pour the remaining chocolate on top and return to the fridge. When the chocolate has set, knock out the bar.

CAN A DAIRY, GLUTEN AND SOY-FREE CHOCOLATE 'TREAT' CUT THE MUSTARD AT EASTER? VEGAN CHOCOLATIER PANA BARBOUNIS CERTAINLY THINKS SO

Take the Easter taste challenge

HAVE a cursory glance at the Easter treats available in the supermarkets and online and you might be surprised by what's on offer.

Where once creme-filled eggs, sugar-shelled treats and hollow chocolate bunnies were the norm, nowadays you're just as likely to have your head turned by chocolate 'Scotch' eggs, cheese flavoured hot cross buns and savoury 'cheester' eggs.

Adding to this alternative trend is chocolatier-with-a-difference Pana Barbounis.

The Melbourne-based entrepreneur founded Pana Chocolate three years ago, creating dairy-free, soy-free, gluten-free luxury chocolate bars containing no refined sugar. Including enticing flavours like ginger and pineapple, fig and orange and coconut and goji, the bars are now sold worldwide and stocked in more than 20 countries.

And with his first book out, Pana Chocolate The Recipes, Pana is keen to show that despite the untraditional ingredients, his raw vegan offerings certainly aren't taste and fun-free.

Truthfully, they do require a bit more welly to make - as well as some more involved searches for ingredients and, in some cases, equipment - but if you're after a different kind of Easter showstopper, this could be a good place to get cracking.

Tempted to tackle the challenge? Here are two recipes from Pana Chocolate to give a whirl...

Pana Barbounis samples a tasty treat and, below, his chocolate bars being wrapped LOTS of you will be enjoying Easter surrounded by family and friends, but there's also another reason to celebrate. Malbec World Day. Yes, this wine has its own day. The idea came from Wines of Argentina to celebrate what has become Argentina's signature grape variety. There might not be any malbec parties near you on Monday, but you could always create a celebratory vibe by picking up a bottle and taking it home. Here are a couple I've tried.

Craft 3 Malbec 2016 (£10, Marks & Spencer, 13.5% abv) This wine is a collaboration between M&S wine experts Emma Dawson and Jeneve Williams and consultant winemaker Gerd Stepp.

RAISE A GLASS WITH JANE CLARE

They've taken grapes from limestone plots in the Uco Valley and together have delivered a full-bodied red which is lush in fruit and dappled with spice. Sweet plums and black fruits ooze from the glass and there's a fruit compote of flavours in the mouth offset by the slightest amount of acidity. Pour with a steak - what else.

Exquisite Collection Argentinian Malbec (£5.99, Aldi, 13.5% abv) This wine also comes from the Uco Valley in Argentina, with grapes grown in high altitude vineyards which create the perfect growing conditions in the intensely sunny climate. It has the colour of a plump, velvety, purple cushion, and, with a wiggle of the glass, the aromas of plum and blackberries draw you in. I advise you to hold the glass still while you sip so you can enjoy a good gush of rich fruits. The flavours don't last a great deal of time, but it's an enjoyable glass.

YOU can follow #worldmalbecday on twitter or go to malbecworldday.com

■ HERE are a couple of unusual fruity, sweet, tastes

if you're feeling adventurous.

Zymurgorium Marmalade Manchester Gin (from £33.50, stockists include masterofmalt.com, 40% abv) Gin made with marmalade? Well almost. Craft gin distillers Zymurgorium teamed up with marmalade makers Duerr's to create this gin made with citrus; including lime, lemon, tangerine and Seville orange.

The distilled creation then passes over orange peel. It has a slight hue of orange and the aromas remind me of Cointreau. My Better Half thought it was too sweet; but it was fine for me and I enjoyed it on its own with chunks of ice.

The Zymurgorium team suggests you make The Ultimate Manchester

Marmalade Gin Collins: mix together 50ml of the gin, 1tsp caster sugar, 1tsp marmalade, 25ml lemon juice, add a lightly crushed lemon or lime wedge and then top up with elderflower tonic or soda.

Mr Gladstone's Curious Emporium Pineapple Cube (£5, Tesco, 9% abv) Who doesn't like a drop of fizz and this one is a little bit different. The bubbles were lively and there was a woosh of pineapple aromas, just like the syrupy juice you get in a tin of pineapple chunks. It is sweet, that's for sure, with sweet pineapple flavours but don't expect complexity.

INGREDIENTS

11 medjool dates, pitted
85ml filtered water
1.5tbsp lemon juice
2tbsp coconut sugar
1.5tbsp coconut butter
1tbsp tahini
2 pinches of Himalayan pink salt
2-3 45g bars of Pana Chocolate Raw Cacao (or a raw chocolate bar of your choice)

1. Using a 7cm chocolate egg mould, or similar, first make sure the mould is completely dry, then begin lining it. Melt the chocolate slowly in a bain-marie. Hold the chocolate mould on a slight angle. With a ladle, spoon the chocolate over each mould to fill. Tap the edge of the mould with the ladle handle to release any air bubbles.
2. Tip the mould upside down over the bowl of chocolate and let the excess drip out, tapping gently with a metal spatula. Run the spatula over the top and sides of the mould to remove all excess chocolate. Set in the fridge for 30 minutes.
3. To create a date paste, blend the medjool dates, filtered water and one tablespoon of the lemon juice in a high-speed blender until smooth. Pass through a fine sieve, if desired. Set aside.

4. Combine the coconut sugar and the remaining half tablespoon of lemon juice in a bowl. Mix until the sugar dissolves.
5. Fold together the coconut butter, tahini, salt and 80g of the date paste. Transfer the mixture into a piping bag and pipe into each lined chocolate mould. Squeeze some filling into each chocolate mould, leaving a gap of approximately 2mm at the top of each mould.

6. Close the moulds with chocolate. Using a metal spatula, scrape off the excess chocolate. Keep your hand and spatula flat to ensure you don't puncture your chocolates.

7. Set in the fridge for two hours. Once set, knock the chocolates out of the moulds.

8. Any extra filling can be used as a spread on banana bread or toast!

A BRAND NEW BUZZ FOR BEZ

Bez swapped the hedonism of his Madchester days, below, for a healthier lifestyle. He's even keeping bees, above, at his countryside home

MARION McMULLEN
talks to Happy Mondays' maraca man about bees, saving the planet and cleaning up his lifestyle

If you're looking for a modern day super-hero then you need look no further than maraca-dancing Bez of the Happy Mondays.

The Celebrity Big Brother winner is an outspoken voice at anti-fracking protests, stood for his own Reality Party at the last election and now embraces an organic lifestyle and begins each day with a healthy juice drink.

He proudly talks about his beehives and says he is doing his bit to help the planet. "Am I still a hellraiser? Yeah, I'll always be a hellraiser, but I'm a positive hellraiser. I'm putting my money where my mouth is."

The son of a police detective inspector, he was known as a legendary party animal who embraced the rock 'n' roll lifestyle with the Happy Mondays, but Bez says he completely changed his lifestyle a few years ago and has never looked back.

"I'm in better shape than when I was a kid," laughs the 52-year-old. "It all changed four years or so. I'd had a few motorcycle accidents and I found a new way of rejuvenating my body and it seems to be working. I'm on the up again and feeling really energised and more healthy."

"I have a juicer and I have had a juice drink every day for the last four years – apple cider, coconut oil, ginger and turmeric. It's all down to diet really and it's helped me with rheumatic pain."

He bursts out laughing: "People have actually asked me if I've had work done, but it's all down to nutrition. I also drink distilled water – like four or five pints a day. It's completely transformed my life. We had 60 litres of apple juice this year so we made cider."

Bez now lives in the countryside on the English and Welsh border and chuckles: "I'm in the middle of nowhere. It's like being up a mountain. My nearest neighbours are miles away. That's the way I like it. I've got my bees and everything, but I don't keep any livestock. There's no point. I can buy eggs, double yolkers as well, from down the road for just a quid. I'm surrounded by all these farms."

The new lifestyle certainly agrees with Bez and he explains: "I'm fighting the revolution and this is part of that. I'm reclaiming my life. I'm taking responsibility for my life."

"A friend died from cancer a few years ago and I thought 'it's not going to happen to me.' This is all part of my fight. All this is part of the revolution. I'm still involved in fracking issues because it does not fit in with my ideal future. It's going back in time instead of moving forward."

"We need to take responsibility for all aspects of our lives and that includes energy. Fracking is not good for us, for our future and our children's futures."

All his newfound energy will certainly stand Bez in good stead when he and the Happy Mondays embark on the 24 Hour Party People – Greatest Hits Tour later this year.

It comes on the eve of the 30th anniversary of the band's debut album Squirrel And G-Man Twenty Four Hour Party People Plastic Face Carnet Smile (White Out). "Just as I thought it was all over, the party's starting again," says Bez. "Gawd, I don't know what I would be doing if Happy Mondays hadn't come along."

"It all happened by accident. I just got up on stage and joined in, but it's been part of my life for so long now."

He says he and singer Shaun Ryder were a little wary of each other before their first meeting because friends kept insisting they would hit it off.

"Everyone was telling me 'You've got to meet Shaun. You'll get along.' And people were telling Shaun the same thing about me so we were quite wary about each other because we had heard this so many times. But everyone was right. We got on like a house on fire."

Bez is quick to reassure fans that the band have no plans to stop soon.

"I love being on tour. It's such a big part of my life. I've been doing it for so long and I miss it when we are not touring. It will be a sad day when we stop, although I still get nervous before we go on stage. I suppose one day we'll say this will be the last tour, but for now we are still on a roll and there's a few more in us yet."

He smiles: "I remember when we first went to America. No-one could understand a word I was saying. They didn't even think it was English. We were sitting in the room launching paper airplanes out of the window one day. We had no idea it was against the law. We were being picked up in big stretch limos and everything. It was just mad."

Bez and his maracas have now become so famous he orders a large box of them before tour dates and has them customized with original artwork.

"They are all different and really nice and I give them away at the end of each gig," he says. "What's great is that they are also being used to raise a lot of money for different charities these days. Who would have thought my maracas would be so useful?"

It's a testament to Bez's enduring popularity with the public that he beat famous personalities like Caprice and Brigitte Nielsen to win Celebrity Big Brother in 2005. So does anyone ever call him by his real name of Mark Berry?

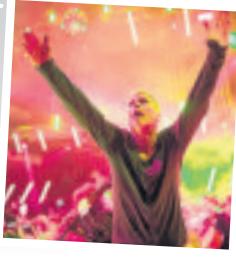

"Me mam, dad and sister still call me Mark," he grins. "It's funny. Everyone else calls me Bez, but I'll always answer if I hear someone calling out Mark."

ALBUM REVIEWS

DIET CIG – SWEAR I'M GOOD AT THIS

KAT Stratford, Julia Stiles' jock-lacerating 'shrew' from the Shakespeare-riffing movie 10 Things I Hate About You, would adore Diet Cig.

Because if Kat loved the pop-punk of Letters To Cleo as much as she made out, she'd be smitten by the all-gold debut LP from Alex Luciano and Noah Bowman.

They're no Bikini Kill or The Raincoats, but that's hardly the premise. This is unashamedly a record that would sit comfortably in a youth club or a rock club.

The Brooklyn-based duo tear through 12 songs in fewer than 30 minutes, supernova hooks at every turn. Luciano's angst fuels the likes of Barf Day ("I just want to have ice cream for my birthday/Blow my candles out and wish all of my pain away"), and Sixteen, an evisceration of a tell-tale ex-boyfriend. The framing of these stories of growing into adulthood help to make this a terrific, uplifting record.

TINIE TEMPAH – YOUTH

SEVEN years after Tinie Tempah broke through with Pass Out, the UK music industry is in a very different place.

Tinie shows his progress by taking us from the estate he grew up on to his plush Hackney townhouse, keen to remind us of the role he's had in making "urban" sounds more palatable to other audiences.

Youth contains the hits you'd expect, notably previously released singles Girls Like and Not Letting Go, but those are seated alongside the kind of production that may not have made it onto his first two albums – released at a time when the UK mainstream was less comfortable with grime-like sonics.

It's an eclectic mix of songs which shows the 28-year-old as a musician worthy of the credit he gets.

SCOTT BRADLEE'S POSTMODERN JUKEBOX – THE ESSENTIALS

IT is perhaps fitting that the Postmodern Jukebox's social media breakthrough came with a ragtime-style cover of Macklemore and Ryan Lewis' Thrift Shop – the song's claim that: "I wear your grandad's clothes, I look incredible," could not be a better fit with PMJ's ethos.

Founder member Robyn Adele Anderson provides vocals there, having kicked off the album with Miley Cyrus' We Can't Stop, while other vocalists are drawn from musical theatre, American Idol, and even outside of music as Puddles the Clown takes on Lorde's Royals.

Maya Sykes' extravagant vocal on I Believe In A Thing Called Love by the Darkness, is among the album's highlights.

Mykal Kilgore's ludicrous version of Celine Dion's My Heart Will Go On is even better, but PMJ's style may be better suited to small doses than an 18-song album – even if it does come with a free cocktail menu.

HOTSEAT

Where you surprised at the success of the first series of Car Share?

SIAN GIBSON: Well, I was completely. Even though I know how much people love Peter, I was still worried that they would just be bored with the two of us stuck in a car and I might be responsible for Peter's first TV flop.

So I was overwhelmed at how much everybody enjoyed the show and the characters.

PETER KAY: Me too, I was completely surprised. I always believed in Car Share but like Sian I was always worried that viewers may not have the patience to stay with such a simple idea of two people commuting to work, especially in this fast-paced day and age with so many options to watch, so yes I was completely surprised.

Casting Sian was the best decision I ever made and I was grateful that the BBC trusted my decision as I knew if we could capture even just a fraction of our friendship then maybe that would be the magic that people would enjoy the most.

SIAN: That's nice.

PETER: It's true, besides Sheridan Smith was busy filming Cilla.

SIAN: You're funny.

Car Share was the most watched new sitcom of 2015. Did that create additional pressure when writing the new series?

PETER: No, not at all, because we'd already written most of the new series in 2014, which was a bit of a gamble as we didn't know if the BBC would want a second series.

But we just loved spending the time writing it together.

SIAN: What he said (laughs).

You've known each other for a number of years now and have worked together before. How did you get along in this series?

SIAN: We speak to each other every day anyway so working together just saves our phone bill.

PETER: True.

SIAN: Our relationship has never changed since our college days, we are still as silly and childish so obviously whenever we work together we get along perfectly as always.

PETER: What she said (laughs).

How does it feel to be back behind the wheel in the new series?

PETER: It was an absolute joy to be back in the car again as after the first series everything was much more familiar. Also the weather was particularly kind to us, we had plenty of sunshine and only had one day of rain which is pretty rare in the North West of England.

Peter Kay with the 2016 BAFTA for best male performance in a comedy programme for Car Share

SIAN: I couldn't wait to get back in the car because we had such a great time making the first series.

This time felt even better because like Peter said we were much more familiar with everything.

What can viewers expect?

PETER: They can expect the unexpected.

SIAN: Ooh that's a bit cryptic.

PETER: The one thing we pride ourselves on the most with writing Car Share is that it's hard to predict what's going to happen and that's hard to achieve, especially with comedy.

Do you select the songs on Forever FM that feature in the show and do they have any special meaning to either of you?

SIAN: We spent ages going through the music and reminiscing. It was the most enjoyable part of writing. We both have the same taste in music.

PETER: No we don't.

Do you select the songs on Forever FM that feature in the show and do they have any special meaning to either of you?

PETER: Because viewers love to binge watch and it's great being able to watch as many episodes as you like in one sitting...

Viewers love to binge watch and it's great being able to watch as many episodes as you like in one sitting...

Peter Kay on the joys of the BBC iPlayer

PETER: You are.

SIAN: Hey (laughs)! It did bring back a lot of memories singing it again.

You recreated a number of pop videos in the first series. Did you have a favourite one?

PETER: I'm very fond of them all but probably Rush Hour by Jane Wiedlin would be my favourite as we were both in the video together.

SIAN: I agree with Peter, I loved all the 50s costumes and the routine in Rush Hour but I think I had the best deal out of the pop videos – Anastasia, Cindi Lauper – and also being in my own animation, swimming under water to Mmmmbop by Hanson.

PETER: That was a first.

The new series will be available on BBC iPlayer in its entirety immediately after episode one airs on BBC1. Why have you decided to do that?

PETER: Because viewers love to binge watch and it's great being able to watch as many episodes as you like in one sitting.

SIAN: I do that, I watched the full series of The Missing in one day.

PETER: I know, it tipped you over the edge.

SIAN: I couldn't stop watching it. I had to know what happened.

PETER: That's exactly what I mean about bingeing.

What comedies do you both enjoy watching at the moment?

SIAN: I have watched all of Inside No 9. I love how they are all so different and quite dark. I am also obsessed with Catastrophe, I think Sharon Horgan is amazing.

PETER: I think (Inside No 9 creators) Reece (Shearsmith) and Steve (Pemberton)'s writing is fantastic. I don't know how they keep the stories so consistent and varied, which is hard enough, but to have to make them funny on top makes it even harder.

How good a driver are you?

PETER: Erm...

SIAN: We are both very bad drivers.

PETER: I'm not that bad I just suffer with a lack of spatial awareness.

SIAN: And you drove into that curb at M&S the other night.

PETER: Alright, it was just a tap, what about when you sneezed and drove through a wall.

SIAN: (Laughs) I had bad hay fever.

PETER: You don't get hay fever!

If you could go on a road trip anywhere in the world, who would you share the journey with?

PETER: I know it's sounds corny but I found my Car Share buddy 23 years ago and I'd be happy sharing a car with Sian anywhere in the world....as long as she wasn't driving.

SIAN: Aww – obviously it would be with Peter... or Idris Elba.

What's next for you two?

PETER: We're currently on our Dance for Life tour, where we hold three-hour dance-a-thons in arenas around Britain, with all the profits going to Cancer Research UK. We both love our music and these nights are such a blast.

SIAN: Yes, we're having a ball. Then hopefully we will work together again in the future...Peter?!

PETER: I'm sure we'll always work together. We're the modern-day Terry and June!

■ Peter Kay's Car Share returns to BBC1 on Tuesday at 9pm.

BOOKSHELF

MAYTE GARCIA laughs as she recalls how her husband would borrow her make-up, mascara and even clothes from her wardrobe.

But then her husband was Prince, the icon revered for his flamboyant style and enigmatic public image, as much as his music.

"He wore my make-up, he wore my perfumes. If I bought a new one, it would be gone. Even my pants [trousers]. He would take them and get them cut so that he could wear them," reveals Mayte, 43, who at 5ft 4ins, was two inches taller than the star.

A dancer, she met the Purple Rain megastar when she was 16 and he was 32, and became his backing dancer, long-time muse, first wife and mother of his only child. They married in 1996 and split a few years later, finally signing divorce papers in 2000.

She says the year since his death has been an 'awakening'.

"It's made me more compassionate and more aware of my surroundings. It's been a year where you don't want it to be real, where you wake up thinking, 'Did all of this really happen, is this a dream?'"

It also led to her decision to reveal what it was like being married to one of the most famous and enigmatic music performers and writers of the century, which she does through her new book, The Most Beautiful: My Life With Prince.

Today, she lives in a modest home in a Los Angeles suburb with her adopted daughter Gia, five, and teaches belly dancing, as well as keeping busy with the small dog rescue charity she founded. It's a far cry from Paisley Park, Prince's vast recording complex and living area outside Minneapolis.

She still has pictures of him, some of his clothes and jewellery, which she's resisted auctioning off, but can't quite bring herself to listen to the music he created during their time together.

It all started in 1990; Mayte had gone to see Prince perform in Barcelona, and after returning to Germany, where her pilot father was based, her mother found out that the singer's Nude Tour would be in Mannheim later that year. She persuaded Mayte to shoot a video of herself dancing - in the hope of getting her a job - which they handed to a dancer backstage before the concert. Prince agreed to meet her.

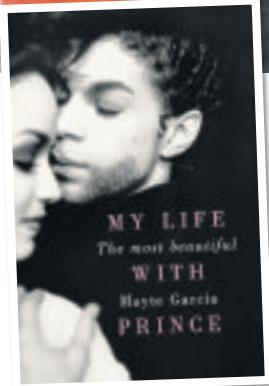

"He was a genius who had a big heart. I want people to know that he wasn't a weird reclusive. He was definitely not normal, but that's why people loved him."

When they married, she joined him on five world tours, appeared in dozens of music videos, after-shows and photo-shoots.

"He was funny, playful. He was older than me, but he made me

STILL GRIEVING FOR HER PRINCE

As the anniversary of Prince's death approaches, his first wife Mayte Garcia tells HANNAH STEPHENSON about how the enigmatic star made her feel, the tragic loss that tore them apart, and coping with her grief

Mayte with Prince and, inset, as she is today. Below, her new book feel important, like what I had to think and say mattered. I remember feeling like I had a voice, even if it wasn't something I had anything to do with, like music.

"He would listen to me, talking about life. He was a great friend and very attentive, very alert."

Once married, Mayte fell pregnant quickly, but heartache followed when their son, Amiir, lived for just a week, due to a rare genetic disorder.

The loss was so agonising that Mayte contemplated suicide.

"I didn't know how I was going to get out of this deep hole. My body was aching for that baby. He [Prince] was dealing with his pain too. I didn't know how I was going to wake up not crying. I don't know how I got back to enjoying anything."

"It was really hard to talk about and I remember trying to find the right words," she continues. "I don't think there are any words that can explain how it feels to lose a child, but I remember feeling so low, for a moment I stepped out of my body and said, 'I don't wish this on my worst enemy.'

"I felt a sense of failure, of, 'What did I do?', of anger, disbelief, shock. I didn't want to confront it or deal with it. It has to be a blur for me to keep moving forward, but it's in my heart and I'll always feel it and I'll always have a sense of compassion and respect for people who go through that."

Prince's way of coping with it was to throw himself into work and go on tour.

"At first, we helped each other," she says. "He went on tour and I got healthy. We were together and we tried again."

She believes he was so lost in his own grief that it left him vulnerable to recruitment into the Jehovah's Witnesses by his friend Larry Graham, the former bass player for Sly And The Family Stone. His newfound faith further distanced him from Mayte.

An early miscarriage in her second pregnancy led to further distress, but Prince threw himself into more touring and met Manuela Testolini, a consultant for his charity, who was to become his second ex-wife.

Mayte signed the divorce papers in 2000, but not before Prince had instructed his assistant to burn everything in the house that reminded him of her or the baby, including the contents of the nursery, Amiir's crib, toys, clothes and even his ashes.

"Now, being older, I look back and think I could definitely have dealt with it differently. I don't blame myself, but there's a part of me now that thinks, fight for what you love. It's always in my heart and it's painful."

She says she was never aware of Prince taking drugs in the decade they were together or popping too many prescription pills, although she records several incidents in the book in which he behaved strangely, saying he was sick.

Nevertheless, his death at 57, from an accidental overdose of painkillers, came as a huge shock.

Mayte was on her way to an animal care centre when Manuela texted her, asking her to call her.

Pulling over, she made the call to be told that Prince had died in a lift at Paisley. Mayte recalls screaming and crying, and arrived home to find reporters and photographers were already camped outside.

In the last year, she's grieved a lot, but says: "I also know because of what we went through, that he [Prince] wouldn't want that. He was always looking to evolve and become enlightened and go to the next level, so when I have my moments - and I've had many - I have to remember that he was such a spiritual man."

"I've lost someone very important in my life. We hadn't spoken for a few years, but that love was still there."

"I think April 21 will be really hard for everybody," Mayte continues. "I'm hoping this book gives people a sense of comfort. It's a beautiful love story and I hope it makes people love him more."

GONE: A GIRL, A VIOLIN, A LIFE UNSTRUNG by Min Kym, Viking, £14.99 (ebook £9.99)

THE theft of a £1.2m Stradivarius violin from a Pret a Manger at Euston Station threw its owner, Korean-born violin genius Min Kym, into the spotlight in 2010.

In this heartfelt memoir it's the description of the intense, loving relationship she has with her beloved Strad which makes this story come alive, how it fitted her body, how she felt like she was putting on Cinderella's slipper. Only then can the reader realise that the theft of that violin was so much more than a physical, financial matter. This fascinating true story is one from the heart - have the tissues ready.

NOTES ON BLINDNESS: A JOURNEY THROUGH THE DARK by John Hull, Profile, £8.99 (ebook £2.84)

A GRIPPING book that will challenge your preconceptions and leave you reeling at the complexities of a life deprived of sight.

Writing movingly of how he finally came to relinquish those things every sighted person takes for granted, academic Hull - who died in 2015 - has a flair for evoking the sensations, ironies and even moral quandaries of the blind (escaping tedious party conversation when you can't see a friend to head for?).

This edition ties in with its BAFTA-nominated cinematic namesake, but it remains as visceral and lucid as when first published.

GASTROPHYSICS: THE NEW SCIENCE OF EATING by Charles Spence, Viking, £16.99 (ebook £9.99)

PROFESSOR Charles Spence won the Ig Nobel prize for his work on the crunch sound crisps make and how this shows about how stale they are.

The Ig Nobel honours work that makes people laugh and then think. This book shows how we eat with our minds as well as our mouth.

Prof Spence reveals the impact smell, sound, sight and touch have on our perception of what we eat. Compelling and revealing reading.

CELEBRITY WELLBEING

DESPITE ALWAYS BEING IN THE LIMELIGHT COLEEN ROONEY TELLS GABRIELLE FAGAN THAT FAMILY LIFE IS AT THE HEART OF HER HAPPINESS

I quite like being the only girl in the house, and I'm happy with what I've got COOLEEN ROONEY has transformed from a shy schoolgirl dating England footballer, Wayne, when they were teenagers, into a fashionista and businesswoman. But she regards bringing up their three children as her most important role.

"Motherhood's totally important to me. I want my boys to have the best start in life," declares the 31-year-old, as she chats about family life and their sons, Kai, seven, Klay, three and Kit, one.

"The boys need to learn the important things, respect and manners, so they grow up into good adults. I want to look at them when they're adults and think, 'I've raised those boys well!'"

Coleen, who married Wayne Rooney nine years ago, is clearly enjoying coping with the demands of her energetic brood. "Having three boys means it's a lively house, but I find that quite natural. I've always been brought up around lots of children. It's good fun and I wouldn't want it any other way," says Coleen, who's an ambassador for toy brand, Lamaze.

"It's so lovely that my three absolutely love each other. Every morning when they wake up, they go into each other's rooms and hug and kiss each other, which is so sweet. Of course, as the day goes on, they do bicker a lot about one of them having a toy the other wants, so they're pretty normal in that respect!"

She's delighted at the close bond her boys enjoy. "Kai and Klay are really good with Kit, and always looking out for him. Kit's a lovely little boy who's always laughing and smiling and although it's very early to say, I think he's going to be a strong character. He loves getting in on whatever his brothers are up to," she says proudly. "Luckily, even if the other two are a bit rough with him without meaning to be, he just laughs. I think it's good for him and he'll grow up stronger because he has to hold his own."

Making the family a focus was instilled in her from an early age by her parents, bricklayer Tony McLoughlin and Colette, who help the couple with childcare. Coleen grew up with two brothers, Joe and Anthony, and an adopted sister, Rosie (who sadly died in 2013 of a rare genetic condition).

She and Wayne, who plays for Manchester United, are undecided on whether they'll have more children. "I don't know. I have my hands full at the moment with three, so not any time soon. People go on about, 'Don't you want a girl?' but I'm not desperate for a girl. It would be nice if I did have one, but the boys are great. I quite like being the only girl in the house and I'm happy with what I've got," she says.

Coleen always looks slim and glamorous, but she has to work hard to keep in shape

"It's so lovely to have a baby around again. When I had Kai, I couldn't wait for him to walk and talk, that's how you are with a first child, but with Klay and Kit I now realise each of those stages lasts such a short time, and I treasure them. I want the little ones to stay young for as long as possible."

Slim and glamorous, Coleen's followed a tough exercise regime of three weekly gym sessions with a trainer and twice a week Pilates sessions to get her back to her pre-pregnancy weight and a size 10.

"I'm naturally curvy and short and there's nothing I can do to make my legs longer, so I just have to work with what I've got and make the best of it! I've never loved exercise, but I've always done it because I feel I have to," she admits.

"There are some people who are naturally slim, no matter what they eat, but it's not like that for me. If I eat and eat, I put weight on, so I have to be stricter. I can never stick to diets because I love my food, but I try to be good in the week and then 'cheat' at the weekend with a takeaway or a glass of wine."

Business-savvy Coleen, who's built her own business empire through endorsement and magazine deals, and fronted her own ITV show, Coleen's Real Women, says: "I sometimes can't believe I'm in my thirties because I feel younger than that. But then I look at my life and think, 'I've got three kids already and I'm married.' As a person, I'm down-to-earth, positive and always try to look forward rather than back. I'm inspired by people who could have a lot to moan about in life, but look for the good in other people." Home is a mansion in Prestbury near Manchester set in 20 acres complete with a swimming pool and, of course, a football pitch, but while the sport is her husband's career focus, the topic doesn't, she says, dominate at home.

"Wayne and Kai talk about football obviously, as Kai's got keen on it now he's a bit older, but it's not constantly about football in the house. Obviously I go and support Wayne – the things he's achieved and is still achieving are unbelievable – but, even before we had kids, Wayne wouldn't come back and go on about it all the time," she says.

"We'll leave it completely up to the boys whether they go into sport later in life and support them to the best of our ability in whatever path they follow. For now, I just think it's important that they have lots of sport and activity in their lives because it's good for their health and fitness."

HEALTH AND LIFESTYLE NEWS

HEALTHY EATING

A SHOCKING 90% of 11 to 18 year olds fail to eat the Government's recommended five a day, a Government National Diet and Nutrition Survey reveals.

And the World Cancer Research Fund says this is cause for concern as a diet low in fruit and vegetables can raise the risk of lung, mouth, pharynx and larynx cancer in later years.

To help encourage Brits to eat more healthily, WCRF has launched a new website called Real Recipes including meals checked by qualified nutritionists and backed by the charity's cancer prevention evidence.

Sarah Toule, WCRF's head of health information, says: "The younger these healthy habits are developed, the easier they are to maintain into adulthood. ■ Visit wcrf-uk.org/real_recipes.

CUT THE RISK

LIVER disease is Britain's fifth biggest killer after heart disease, cancer, stroke and respiratory illness. But a new study suggests few people know how to cut their risk or spot the signs they may have it.

Peter Harrison, of medical technology firm Siemens Healthineers, which carried out the research, says: "The lack of awareness of liver disease causes and symptoms means people may be unaware they have the disease until it is too late."

A TALKING THERAPY

PEOPLE who speak two or more languages cope better with the symptoms of Alzheimers.

Previous studies found lifelong bilingualism may even delay its onset. Now Italian researchers have discovered that, even if you do develop the disease, the ability to speak two languages can still provide the brain with more resilience to withstand damage from it.

Constantly switching between two languages appears to make the brain work harder, leading to structural changes.

BEAUTY COUNTER

Nailed on for colour

Let your talons do the talking with the season's prettiest polishes. KATIE WRIGHT charts spring's top 10

THE spring/summer nail polish collections have hit the beauty counters and one thing's for sure - it's all about colour.

Forget last season's nudes and noirs, right now punchy hues and sugary pastels are the perfect partners for the catwalk trends that are making waves on the high street too.

Loving Cuban ruffles and tropical frocks? You'll want a juicy yellow to set them off. Rocking the deconstructed shirting look? An ivory shade is what you're after. And the colour of the season, pink, is represented on both sides of the spectrum, from raspberry to sugared almond.

From pale to eye-popping, these are our top polish picks...

BRIGHT AND BEAUTIFUL

PASTEL POWER

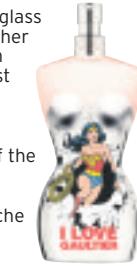

■ AS beauty products go, they don't come much more iconic than Elemis Pro-Collagen Marine Cream. Now the skincare favourite has launched an SPF 30 version, 14 years after the original - because only now does the technology exist to enable an exact replica of the gel-cream formula.

We've had a sneak peak and we can tell you that it feels EXACTLY the same. Elemis Pro-Collagen Marine Cream SPF 30 is £82 at elemis.com

■ HANDS up who's picked off their gel nails? While your digits are recovering, you can at least now disguise the damage with Orly Breathable Treatment + Color, a hybrid polish/protector that claims to let more oxygen through to the nail bed, so your nails thicken up faster. It comes in 18 shades, and the appropriately named Fresh Start (the minty green, above) has caught our eye. Priced £12 at orlybeauty.com/

■ TWO iconic hourglass figures come together this month as Jean Paul Gaultier's most famous feminine fragrance gets a Wonder Woman makeover ahead of the big-screen release starring Gal Gadot. Classique Eau Fraiche is a floriental juice that sparkles with hints of ginger, sugar cane and vanilla. Find it at Debenhams and, debenhams.com now priced £72.50 for 100ml.

CELEB SECRET

SHE is only 16 but Iris Law - the genetically blessed daughter of Jude Law and Sadie Frost - is already on to her second beauty campaign for Burberry.

The teen, pictured, is promoting Burberry's Essentials collection - an edit of must-have products that everyone can use to enhance their features and achieve a flawless glow (burberry.com).

PUZZLE TIME

Pathfinder

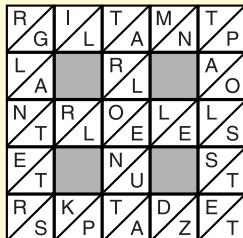

Beginning with the top highlighted letter, follow a continuous path of words associated with the given subject. The trail goes through each letter once, twisting up, down and sideways, but never diagonally.

Robbie Williams songs

Split Decision

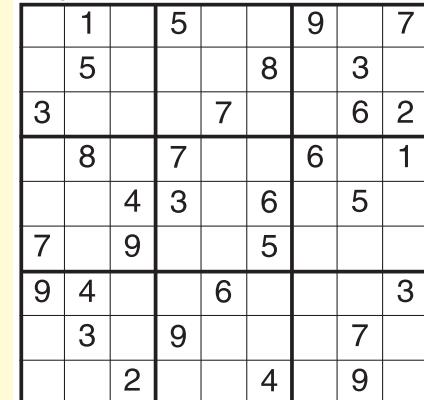

Cross out one of the two letters in each divided square to reveal a completed crossword grid.

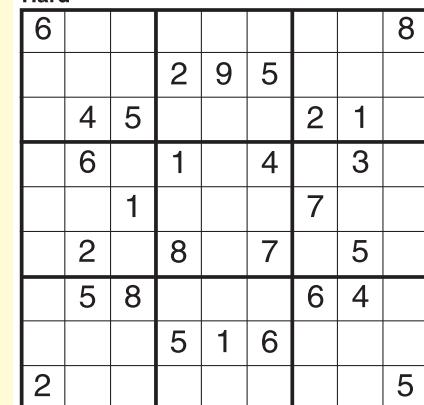

Sudoku

There is one simple rule in Sudoku. Each row and each column must contain the numbers 1 to 9, and so must each 3x3 box.

Easy

Hard

Two Speed Crossword

This two-speed crossword has two sets of clues, but just one grid. If you can't solve the Cryptic clue, try the Quick.

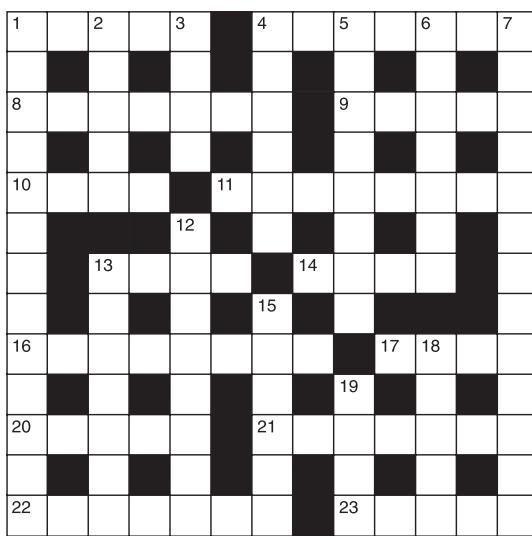

Cryptic

Across

- Like a ship taking many to port (5)
- It's not bound to be distributed (7)
- Greek hero, oddly sly in habits! (7)
- Not busy with coal (5)
- They're used in bitter springs (4)
- Naval vessels which should be quarantined? (8)
- Sailor's refuge in drink (4)
- Meadows provide some pleasure (4)
- Russian name worker as an N.C.O. (8)
- The best part of a play (4)
- Think of love and languish (5)
- It alone can provide a sense of euphoria (7)
- A sort of colour relationship? (7)
- Has to provide promises (5)

Down

- Store of gags - or one that is really ridiculous (8,5)
- Cut the cackle and use the tea cloth! (3,2)
- Bird sanctuary? (4)
- When Carla's around the sailor appears! (6)
- Little brothers tucked up in a bed, concentrating (8)
- Articles to be followed (7)
- Work as a plumber (4,9)
- A priceless local attraction (4,4)
- Some wine I get no return for (7)
- An expression of surprise in a legal document (6)
- A somewhat predictable order (5)
- Card game depending on luck for a change (4)

Scribble pad

Quick

Across

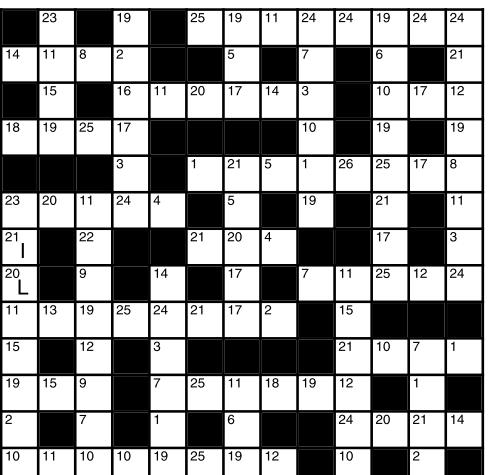

- Burdened (5)
- Tract (7)
- Legendary hero (7)
- Loose (5)
- Beer ingredient (4)
- Bearers (8)
- Left side (4)
- Meadows (4)
- Officer (8)
- Go first (4)
- Express a view (5)
- Joyfulness (7)
- Related (7)
- Curses (5)

Down

- Object of ridicule (8,5)
- Become arid (3,2)
- Bird's home (4)
- E. Indian sailor (6)

- Rulers (7)
- Measure depths of water (4,9)
- Complimentary drinks (4,4)
- Helping (7)
- Certainly (6)
- Decree (5)
- Card game (4)

Quiz

This puzzle has no clues. Instead, every number printed in the grid represents a letter, with the same number always representing the same letter. For example, if 8 turns out to be a V, you can write in V wherever a square contains 8. Using your knowledge of words, complete the puzzle.

Q1 - Kim Cattrall

- In which ocean do the Pitcairn Islands lie?
- Which country's regime from 1933 to 1945 was known as the Third Reich?
- Of which group of islands is Alderney the third largest?
- What sort of creature is a saluki?
- Which novelist wrote Frankenstein?
- Which organ of the body is infected by pyelitis?

FEATURE PROPERTY

Lovely former show home in Church Langley

KINGS Group are proud to market this beautifully presented three bedroom detached family home. Originally the show home for Belfield Gardens this property benefits from a garage and private driveway for three vehicles, a larger than average rear garden with side access.

The property is decorated to a high standard.

The ground floor boasts an open plan living and dining area and a fully fitted kitchen. The first floor benefits from three well maintained bedrooms, with the master bedroom benefiting from an en-suite.

This type of house will not be around long so do not waste any time and take your opportunity to become a resident today.

Belfield Gardens, Church Langley, Harlow, is on the market for £225,000.

GARDENING >with Caroline Knight

Growing food is tasty and fun

THE 'grow your own' movement has rarely been so popular. Values regarding food seem to be moving towards a full circle from the days of yore when 'digging for victory' was a necessity.

The realisation that growing food is not only useful but healthy and fun is gradually dawning and a recent survey suggests that over a quarter of British adults now grow some sort of food. More of us are expressing an interest in growing – whether it might be a simple desire to pick fresh strawberries and raspberries or perhaps colourful cherry tomatoes from a handy hanging basket or those who want their children to experience underground treasure such as potatoes which can grow in a simple hessian sack or bag.

Part of the growing interest stems from a realisation that processed foods often contain what might be regarded as 'unnatural' and therefore potentially dubious ingredients, generally served with a sprinkling of hidden sugar. What's wrong with sugar? Some say that it is the single worst ingredient in the modern diet, causing harmful effects on the metabolism and possibly contributing to many different types of disease. In fact, there are no essential nutrients in the stuff – no proteins, essential fats, vitamins or minerals. It can therefore lead to nutritional deficiencies and, just as importantly, it can feed bacteria already in the body, allowing them to get out of hand. Other problems centred around sugar concern the liver which can relatively easily be overloaded leading to a condition known as 'fatty liver'. None of these problems applies to fruit, however, as the fructose is more easily accessed and processed.

Five easy plants for the vegetable garden

■ Runner beans and French beans they can romp away without too much nurturing. They do need canes but once they are up and running, they'll virtually look after themselves. The French variety can even be grown in tubs just outside the kitchen door.

■ Potatoes Just chit them (sprout in other words), stick them under the soil either in the ground or in a potato growing bag, mound earth over the top once they start sprouting, keep earthing up and they are ready when the tops go yellow and droopy.

■ Courgettes Once the seeds have sprouted they will grow and grow! Tip: start off these frost-tender young plants indoors, then put them out once the weather's warm. Give them a sheltered, sunny site and remember these plants need a lot of space! Planting distance is 100cms between little plantlets. Two or three will be enough for most households – and you'll have some left over for the neighbour too. They will soon cover the space and supply you with wonderful, plump fruits which will need harvesting at least twice per week. They taste much better when they are small, so don't be tempted to leave them as they will turn into marrows!

■ Cut and come again salad This is so easy – just sprinkle seeds in a tray filled with seed compost and keep on cutting throughout the summer. Salad takes just three weeks and you should eat the leaves when they are young and tender. Keep on a windowsill or greenhouse so the slugs don't harvest the leaves before you arrive!

TURN AROUND: Herbs like to have free-draining soil and a sunny spot in the garden, so a free-standing herb wheel allows you to position them in the best possible spot

■ Herbs There are so many easy herbs that will keep going, year after year. Plant them close to the kitchen so you can pluck a handful when you need them. What can you grow? Rosemary; chives; sage; thyme; mint. There are delicious non-hardy herbs which can be grown from seed and kept outdoors during the summer including basil and coriander too. Top tip: herbs like light! Even light-coloured paving or a nearby mirror to reflect light upon them will help them to grow more prolifically.

Special offer: buy six herbs and pay for five (+p&p) from www.perfectplants.co.uk.

■ Perfect Plants is an on-line supplier of garden plants and house plants.

Also garden equipment, furniture and gifts. 01323 833479 or visit www.perfectplants.co.uk

SPUDS-U-LIKE: Growing potatoes in a bag is an easy way to turn out the tatties

MINT CONDITION: Herbs in pots are ideal for moving in and out of the house

BEEFED-UP BMW

By Robin Roberts

Ticking boxes is what it's about with the BMW X4. This beefy brother to the 3 Series was introduced to fill a niche of the market where Audi, Porsche, even Land Rover, have been plugging away with their SUVs.

Without losing the 3 Series agility, the 4X4 brings added ability with its intelligent all-wheel-drive transmission and that is useful on slippery roads or muddy tracks.

Essentially there are six models in the range in three trim levels, SE, xLine and M Sport.

The compact range is powered by four cylinder 190bhp 2.0-litre, six cylinder 258bhp or 313bhp 3.0-litre diesel engines.

The 3.0d is the mid-range model but higher level of trim and it comes with a hefty price tag and VED penalties, which, if you can live with, means you get a very powerful and refined car for your donation to the national debt.

Temperature control is very effective with powered windows as well as auto climate settings but there's no sunroof.

For the driver everything comes immediately to hand, instruments are big and clear, less important screens are also easy to read as well and the reversing camera is one of the highest quality I have ever used.

At the other end, the BMW X4 M Sport has some of the brightest lights I have experienced as well with long wide beams, there's very big wipers and a powerful wash facility.

Vision is good to front and sides in daylight, over the shoulder is far more restricted when pulling into traffic and you really need the sensors and that camera when parking as the corners are out of sight.

There's bags of power underfoot, always delivered unhesitatingly, strongly and quietly with an eight-speed transmission making imperceptible changes up or down the box.

It is difficult to tell how hard the powertrain is working because the noise levels are very low, but so is the economy overall and that's the give away to its performance.

The pickup, composure and always on tap power is delivered seamlessly, and it's the same with the powerful brakes and really well balanced steering in your hands.

Ride quality is generally good, slightly firm on the big wheels, but still compliant and never hard or body shaking.

It corners with confidence and without drama, and you're never aware of the all-wheel-drive grip shifting back to front or the other way. You just sit there in a safety bubble.

The BMW X4 M Sport makes you feel good and at the end of your journey or day you can just tick off another one completed.

TESTED: BMW X4 3.0d M Sport

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19

Try to listen to what your close ones are asking of you. There is a really stubborn streak evolving in you this week, which could see you digging your heels in unnecessarily. Know how far is too for to go when pushing for changes you may not even want by the time this month comes to a close. Ring now to hear why it's worth rechecking all forms you've filled in.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 310 65p PER MINUTE

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20

This is a far more rested Pisces I write to than the upright one of last week. That's because you're taking a more realistic view of things are. You don't even think about taking on things you know will give you stress or worry. Contact from someone linked to your past stirs mixed emotions within you. Ring now to hear what's blurring your usual good judgement.

WHEN PUSH COMES TO SHOVE: Harlow have been in great form this season

Boggon runs for county at nationals

FOURTEEN-year-old Passmores student Kai Boggon has maintained his fine running form with two excellent performances.

The teenager was selected to represent Essex in the All England Schools Cross Country Championships at Norwich in the junior boys event.

He raced to an excellent 37th place out of 50 starters over the 4k course, clocking 13min 01sec on the fast, parkland course.

Fellow Woodford Green with Essex Ladies AC member Sidnie Ward, 14, from Burnt Mill, was also selected and finished 94th in 13:42.

Last week, Kai opened up his track season in fine style over 3k at Woodford Green.

Competing in the 3000m, he took instructions from his coach John Stow and stuck to the plan in fine style, running an excellent 9:30.8 – some 55 seconds quicker than last year.

This ranks him second in the UK for U15 boys at this early stage of the season.

Kai will be looking to contest this event at the South Of England and National Championships for U15 boys as he has already achieved the entry standard.

■ Three Harlow Running Club members had a very successful day at the Manchester Marathon, all achieving PBs.

Daniel Jephcott finished in 2,08hr place out 8,686 finishers in 3hr 34min 15sec. Faith Jackson-Lee was 3,173rd (3:48:15) and Paul Lee, 3,657th (3:54:12).

Finishers

At the Lee Valley Half Marathon, Andy Smith finished 73rd out of 384 in 1:39:28.

He was followed by: Steve Jack 78th, 1:39:19 (PB); John Bull 79th, 1:40:10; Terry Ridge 87th, 1:42:02; Catherine Ridge 88th, 1:42:05 (PB); Mark Moulds 141st, 1:49:03; Graham Saville 156th, 1:51:54; Alan Cootes 176th and second Vet 60, 1:54:43; Carmen Byfield 330th, 2:23:06.

Over the 10K distance Mark Ramsey finished in 59th out of 410 finishers in 47:44sec (PB). He was followed by: Holly Nairn 117th, 52:36; Alan Wellbelove 134th, 54:18; Louise Kedge 138th, 54:26; Rachael Morris 140th, 54:00; Melody Nairn 228th, 60:37; Michael Gornall 271st, 62:09.

The club had a good turnout on Sunday morning at the St Clare 10K at Hastingwood, with 28 runners helping to raise funds for the Hospice.

Conditions were not ideal, the weather was very warm and the course was quite undulating.

Pride of place went to Afewer Rossom who finished in second place out of 265 finishers in a fantastic 35:18, a PB and a new U20 club record.

Danny McCree finished in 11th in 39:41 in his debut at the distance. He was followed by fellow debutants Craig Segal 12th in 39:49 and Barry Mooney 26th in 41:53.

Super Harlow are league champions

Final game victory over West Norfolk seals the title

HARLOW Rugby Club have won the London Three North East title after a 44-12 victory at West Norfolk.

They went into the final league weekend three points ahead of second placed Wanstead knowing nothing less than a win would see them crowned champions.

They made the perfect start as five minutes into the game fly-half Danny Smith slotted over a penalty to give them a three point lead.

Five minutes later, open side flanker Micheal Weston broke through for a try and Smith converted to extend the advantage to ten points.

For a quarter of an hour West Norfolk managed to keep Harlow away from the try line, but then winger Ryan McGlone broke through for a try.

Smith slotted over the extras and Harlow were in the driving seat at 17-0.

By half-time, Harlow looked to be out of sight at 39-0 thanks to unconverted tries from centre

Ross Stalley and Scott Whitby on the other wing.

But the home side were not giving up without a fight, getting on the scoreboard with an unconverted try.

Top

Weston hit back for Harlow with his second try, and then in the final move of the game West Norfolk added a try and conversion making the final score 44-12.

The win means that Harlow finish top of the league, three points ahead of Wanstead who won their game as expected.

The league title for Harlow's first XV is the highlight of a great season for men's rugby at Ram Gorse.

The Rams (second team) and Saints (third team) have also won Division Three and Division Six of the Essex Merit Leagues.

The promotion will ensure that visitors to the new club facility, which is nearing completion, will have some great rugby to enjoy.

Gary Watts, manager of the Rams, said: "The Rams finished the season as clear league winners with stats of played 18, won 16 and lost two, points for 753, points against 148.

"All this from a squad with half of their players aged 20 or younger, a number of whom have already had a taste of first team rugby.

"It's a good way to end their time at Ram Gorse and a perfect position from which to begin playing at the new club come September."

home on Easter Monday, both 3pm kick-offs.

Alex Read put the hosts ahead after just 12 minutes, finding himself in plenty of space following Layne Eadie's delivery to finish low into the corner.

Grays weren't seeing much of the ball, and Harry Watkins squandered their only sight of goal when he shot wide from 20 yards out.

Harlow were well on top, and Junior Dadson saw a shot deflect to Eadie, who placed his effort just wide of the goal as the Hawks looked to double their lead.

The visitors were on the back foot, and only a series of defensive blocks kept the scoreline down.

Harlow had dropped points in their previous two home games against Leiston and Burgess Hill, despite being on top for large portions of the game, but Read put those fears to bed when he headed home his second from Jared Small's cross soon after half-time.

Joao Carlos had a rare chance for the visitors, but his shot from the edge of the area was easily collected by Hawks stopper David Hughes.

Read was in sublime form and he made it three on 64 minutes, flicking over the stranded goalkeeper.

Junior Dadson then scored twice to complete the rout as Harlow comfortably saw off their opponents.

Read hat-trick keeps Hawks in the play-off hunt

A SENSATIONAL second half performance kept Harlow Town in the Ryman Premier play-off picture as they swept aside relegated Grays Athletic 5-0.

With only three games of the season to go, Hawks must ensure they keep up their goal scoring prowess, starting at Bognor Regis Town this Saturday and then against Enfield Town at
